9. Objectives	Trade and Commodity Finance (TCF) is essentially concerned with the financing of trade flows and dealing with and mitigating country, credit and counterparty risks in these markets. The course will outline how the traditional trade finance for commodities using banks and letters of credit has evolved and how many trading companies seek other sources and methods of financing. The course examines financing trade and commodities from different perspectives. These perspectives include the view from the bank, the trading company and the third-party financing options such as funds, private equity and other investors. The real understanding in Trade and Commodity Finance comes in being knowledgeable of the legal aspects underlying and supporting the instruments and documents used in financing. Credit and financial analysis of company balance sheets are also essential skills obtained on this course as these inputs are important when determining credit facilities.
